These guidelines should be read in conjunction with the Code of Corporate Disclosure Practices adopted by the company.

It is hereby clarified that Management Personnel of associate or joint venture companies of the parent listed entity in India shall always seek prior written consent and sign off from the parent before either meeting, communicating or sharing any data with any analysts/investors/potential investors/media persons.

Participants & Pre-Meeting Preparations

1. The Chief Investor Relations Officer (“IRO”) or his/ her representative, and/or the Chief Corporate Communications (“CCC”) or his/her representative, as the case may be and the Compliance Officer (“CO”) or his/her representative should be preferably present for Analyst Meetings.
2. Management Personnel scheduled to attend any Analyst Meeting should be prepared with list of anticipated questions, list of related data/information that has been officially published by the company and be cognizant of related data/information that is unpublished and price sensitive. Prior to such meetings, the IRO, CO, CCC as the case may be shall ensure that he/she has signed off for content, completeness and accuracy of all data or information that may or is proposed to be shared in such meeting. In case of doubts, the content should be jointly signed by CO and the IRO/CCC as case may be.
3. The information pack containing the financial data of the company shall be signed off by the CFO or persons authorised by the CFO for accuracy of financial data contained therein (“IR presentation”). The IR presentation must contain an appropriate and adequate legal disclaimer on confidentiality and ‘forward looking statement’ safe harbour. If required, prior written consent of the concerned third party may be duly obtained, if it is intended that the IR presentation contain third party trademarks, comparable data or research report extracts.
4. Management Personnel, in consultation with the IRO/ CO/CCC, should have a ready script for questions that the Management may want to avoid answering in the Analyst Meeting. For instance, research analysts may have independently (through channel partners or otherwise) estimated sales figures, etc., which may be raised in Analyst Meetings. For such questions the company may formulate responses in advance. This approach would also be relevant if there has been recent media speculation regarding any proposed transaction or event (such as in relation to any merger or investment discussions involving the company).

5. In order to avoid misquoting or misrepresentation, it is preferable that at least two Management Personnel are present at any Analyst Meetings. Further, only persons authorised by the company, under its corporate authorisation policy may be permitted to speak during the Analyst Meeting. If such an authorisation is not in place, the company must formulate and adopt a policy in this regard which should be communicated to all employees.
6. Prior research may be done on the research firms participating in the Analyst Meetings. companies are advised to undertake a background review of the Research Firms/Analyst and the Institutional Investors prior to the meeting and ascertain their views on the company. This would help the Management Personnel to be better prepared for the meeting. It may also be checked whether they have recently upgraded/downgraded rating for your company's securities and what were the issues cited. The company's message should attempt to address these issues, wherever possible.
7. Arrangements must be made to publicise the schedule of the quarterly analyst meetings in advance and to record the proceedings of such meetings of the company and transcribe them and/or to simultaneously webcast proceedings of such meetings. The transcripts can be uploaded by the company on its website within a reasonable time.
8. It is preferable that no Analyst Meetings are held at least 2 weeks prior to the announcement of quarterly financial results. Additionally, the IRO/CO/CCC must be mindful of any other price sensitive events such as material acquisitions, mergers, issues etc. while finalising schedules for Analyst Meetings during the year.
9. As a best practice, Management Personnel shall endeavour that a delayed-use agreement is executed between the company and the analysts/investors/potential investors/ media persons for all Analyst Meetings as the case may be, where such persons agree not to use any of the information shared in such meetings for a period of 36 hours. This allows the company to determine whether any information was inadvertently disclosed, so the company can take necessary steps to cure such error.

Proceedings

10. Management Personnel should not disclose or refer to any unpublished price sensitive information ("UPSI") during Analyst Meetings except for disclosures and announcements made in the normal course of business at quarterly analyst meets of the company. While answering any questions, the Management Personnel should only refer to or discuss data/information already published by the company. There should be no disclosure on UPSI to a single or group of journalists in isolation. Price sensitive information that is in public circulation but not released/ confirmed by the company should be treated equivalent to UPSI.
11. If any material UPSI is inadvertently disclosed at an Analyst Meeting, the company shall take immediate and appropriate measures to rectify such inadvertent disclosures including simultaneously or immediately disseminating such material UPSI after the Analyst Meeting, made public, through the company's website.

12. When communicating any forward looking statement, such statements may be caveated with appropriate prefixes such as 'management believes/expects/anticipates/intends/plans/foresees' or other phrases of similar import.
13. Management Personnel are not required to answer every question – when Management Personnel are in doubt about the correctness of any facts or if a particular disclosure will lead to disclosure of material UPSI, they may offer to provide an answer later. Another way to deal with unwarranted questions is a simple response - 'No comments'. 'No reaction' may be given to any speculative story published in the media.
14. The IRO/CO/CCC/other representatives as authorised by CFO must be part of discussions and step in, where necessary, if they are of the view that a certain question is to be avoided or if the discussion on a particular point should be discontinued.
15. Any questions on competitors or any fishing enquiries or on matters that are sub judice should be strictly avoided.
16. Any commercially sensitive data or any other data that has a bearing on company's competitiveness may not be revealed even though such data may not contain any UPSI. Further, specific responses may not be given by referring to any pipeline project under evaluation stage (if the same has not been made public).
17. As a Tata Group Company, disclosure of projections and guidance on future earnings/profitability is to be avoided.
18. As a politically neutral Group, any politically incorrect statements or statements that may imply that the company favors a particular political party or candidate should not be made. To any question on a proposed government action/policy, may be answered by providing generic response by discussing impact on the industry as a whole and specific to the company.
19. The proceedings of the quarterly analyst meeting must be recorded and uploaded on the website of the company.
20. Demeanour of the Management Personnel should be professional and guarded, so as to ensure that no conclusions drawn by participants in relation to discussions around price sensitive information.

Post-Meeting

21. The IRO/CO/CCC must carefully review the available recording, if any of Analyst Meetings to ensure that no material UPSI was disclosed during the Analyst Meeting. If any material UPSI was disclosed, the same must be published on the company's website or if required, notified to the stock exchanges for public disclosure.
22. A transcript of the Analyst Meeting, if available can be uploaded on the company's website within a reasonable time. This will help avoid misquoting and miscommunication.
23. After the Analyst Meeting, IRO/CCC as case may be and CO must take necessary steps on questions that require follow up and communication to relevant person who posed the question.
24. If not done before the Analyst Meeting, IR presentation made by the company to analysts shall be put on company's website.

25. The IR presentation, underlying data points and Analyst Meeting transcript, if any, must be preserved by the company as part of its corporate records atleast for a period of eight years.
26. In the event of misquoting in media reports or if there is any miscommunication regarding any part of the proceedings of an Analyst Meeting, the IRO/CCC/CO as the case may be must promptly issue clarifications and clear any speculation.

The key guiding factors that the Management Personnel should bear in mind are that:

- (a) the company must ensure that all investors have equal access to company information and therefore the discussions and conduct of the Management Personnel at any meeting must avoid creating any information disparity amongst investors/potential investors/analysts and the media community; and
- (b) the company is prohibited from disclosing material UPSI selectively to amongst investors/analysts and media persons at such meetings and hence, the investors/potential investors/analysts and media persons are likely to proceed on the assumption that all information shared at such meetings is generally available and that there is no reason to believe that it is UPSI. The conduct of the Management Personnel should be guided accordingly.
- (c) Many employees may be shareholders and may have access to more detailed information regarding performance or other UPSI as part of the Managing Director's/Executive Director's address to employees. It should be reiterated in such address that they should maintain strict confidentiality and only deal in the company's shares during permitted periods and after following due process laid down.
